

Brian's adventurous life has uniquely prepared him for his current role as Vice President for Premier Global Productions. Growing up in rural Saskatchewan, Canada, Brian was instilled with the dedicated work ethic that is indicative of people from the prairies. In early adulthood he left home to join the armed forces and see the world, which he did over a period of four years. In the military, Brian learned the virtue of self-discipline and the value of being prepared for the worst, because sometimes the worst can happen. During this time, Brian received a diploma in Traffic and Transportation from the University of Waterloo.

After leaving the armed forces, Brian started Andrews & Sons Drilling, a water drilling company. Brian built the company from one rig to ten that spanned several different countries including Canada, the United States, Mexico, Saudi Arabia, Suriname, Mozambique and South Africa. In this venture, Brian developed skills in creating and managing multi-million dollar projects. He implemented large-scale feasibility studies, became an expert at obtaining financing, and put his military discipline to use managing the budgets of these complex and lucrative projects.

Brian's success in business was recognized when he was asked to become a member of the founding board of directors of the Saskatchewan Trade and Export Partnership (STEP), an organization working in partnership with Saskatchewan businesses to maximize commercial success in global ventures. Brian participated in this board for two years, lending his vast global experience to the benefit of Saskatchewan business.

In 1996, Brian was approached to put his analytical mind and vast project management experience to work for Premier Global Productions. As Vice President, Brian is responsible for the overall management of all Premier Global accounts.

His life and work experiences have prepared him well for the management of Premier Global's vast and varied accounts. The entertainment business is a constantly shifting landscape where one day always differs from the next and Brian understands these business dynamics implicitly.
